HELPFUL HINTS FOR THE JEWISH TRAVELLER

By MIKE COHEN

THE PRINCIPALITY OF MONACO: When we decided to spend a few days in Nice, friends told us to take the train one night and experience dazzling Monte Carlo in Monaco.

The principality of Monaco (<http://www.visitmonaco.com>) has a colorful and fascinating history filled with barbarians, kings and even a movie star. It is a story of castles, epic battles and untold riches. Since 2005, H.S.H. Prince Albert II – already known as the green Prince for his interest in the environment – has been leading the Principality into the 21st century with the support of his sisters H.R.H. Princess of Hanover and

H.S.H. Princess Stephanie. In 2011 Prince Albert married Charlene Wittstock.

Monaco enjoys a privileged location at the heart of Mediterranean Europe. The Principality is nestled between the Alps and the Mediterranean Sea, bounded by the French Riviera to the west and the Italian Riviera to the east. This is the second smallest country in the world, after Vatican City - three miles long by one-half miles wide (about the size of New York's Central Park). While Monaco is the name of the country, Monte-Carlo is a district within Monaco.

Monte Carlo was a remarkable dinner at the Salle Empire (<http://www.montecarlosbm.com>) at the gorgeous Hôtel de Paris (hoteldeparismontecarlo.com). We took the train from Nice to Monte Carlo and enjoyed a pleasant 10 minute walk through town to this most breathtaking facility where we were seated on a magnificent terrace overlooking the entrance to the grand casino. This was "people watching" at its best. A musical trio serenaded us with soft songs and a group of servers provided us with sensational service, starting things off with champagne, soft lemon rolls and their signature potato chips.

It is in the Salle Empire that haute gastronomy is served during private dinners catering for up to 350 guests, and concerts and shows are organized for invited audiences. Spectacular celebrations also take place in this setting, unique in Europe. It is part of the Alain Ducasse enterprise. We had already tasted his culinary excellence earlier on in the trip at Le Jules Verne Restaurant at the Eiffel Tower.

Home to chic galas, refined dinners and the Principality's most sophisticated soirées, the Salle Empire - a classified historical monument - underwent careful and meticulous restoration in 2004. Eight hundred thousand gold leaves (the equivalent of a gold bar) for its ceiling, five French windows opening out to the terrace overlooking the Place du Casino (a distinctive feature which astonishes guests), swathes of silk and precious trimmings...nothing has been forgotten to glorify its style and its beauty.

We experienced an extraordinary meal which lasted nearly two and a half hours. Every item on the menu was explained in great detail and if something did not meet our dietary requirements a substitute was easily arranged. First was an interesting and nutritious drink, a concentrated healthy extract of bio vegetables. This was followed by raw and cooked vegetables from the hotel's own garden, with tangy juice. We then enjoyed some amazing eggplant ravioli with fresh goat's cheese and thyme lemon. The main course was a roasted lack of lamb from prealps rubbed with summer savory and summer vegetable. It was beautifully prepared.

There were no less than three separate desserts: home-made delicacies and chocolates from the Hôtel de Paris; red fruit, strawberry juice and vanilla ice cream; and a traditional chocolate soufflé. The servers made a hole in the middle and poured hot chocolate sauce inside. We each got a side plate of whipped cream. This was so light and beyond delicious. The final serving was a moka coffee. The Hôtel de Paris falls under the auspices of the Group Monte-Carlo SBM (www.sbm.mc), which oversees four casinos, four luxury and top quality hotels (Hôtel de Paris, Hôtel Hermitage, Monte Carlo Beach and Monte-Carlo Bay Hotel & Resort), 30 restaurants and bars, the Thermes Marins de Monte-Carlo (one of Europe's finest spa and thalassotherapy centres), the mythic city hall "Salle des Etoiles" and La Rascasse and Sea Lounge.

The Salle Empire has been the site of many bar and bat mitzvah celebrations, as well as brit milas. Although they do not provide kosher meals, they do prepare special courses respecting the Jewish traditions.

JEWISH COMMUNITY: There were some 300 Jews living in Monaco prior to World War II. To save their Jewish citizens from Nazi persecution, the principality's government issued false identity papers. Prince Louis 11 helped save Edouard Rothschild from deportation. In 1948 the Association Culturelle Israelite de Monaco became the official organization of the community. Today, most of the 1000 Jews live in Monte Carlo, although few of them are actually citizens. They come mainly from France and the United Kingdom but also from North Africa and Turkey. The Association Culturelle Israelite de Monaco is a house that has been converted into a synagogue, a community Hebrew school, and kosher food shop. The community does have a rabbi, who leads weekly services and teaches classes. There are services on Shabbat. Several organizations, including WIZO and B'nai B'rith, are active in the community.

being Palestinian.

Even when the first Intifada broke out in 1987 Halabi continued working in Israel to achieve the Palestinian goal: save up money, build a house and get married, which is what he did in 1990. Without the work in Israel, this would not have been possible. In Israel, he says, he makes $80 per day as a laborer, compared to $60 per day in the Palestinian territories.

"I tile one square meter (for a Palestinian project) in the West Bank, I get $7. In "settlements", the same amount gets me $14, while inside Israel it's $28. The decision is an easy one.

Halabi says on average, a Palestinian makes $420 a month working in the West Bank, while in Israel workers earn double this.

"When I see my kids can't eat until I go to the settlement to work, of course I'm going to go so I can not only feed them but give them a good life," he said. An estimated 25,000 Palestinians work in construction in Jewish communities in the West Bank, and some Palestinians have said they should quit because they are entrenching the Israeli occupation and making an independent Palestinian state less likely.
