HELPFUL HINTS FOR THE JEWISH TRAVELLER

By MIKE COHEN

NEW YORK'S JEWISH CONNECTION: New York's landmark historic Jewish neighborhood, the Lower East Side, was once home to the world's largest Jewish community. Covering the area between Houston and Canal Streets east of the Bowery, this neighborhood is where New York's garment industry began. Today it is a bargain hunter's paradise, with great deals to be found on everything from souvenir t-shirts to menorahs, especially along Orchard Street in the neighborhood's center. The overall New York Jewish community in the metropolitan area has remained stable at 1.4 million people; the population of New York City is just below a million. Indeed, the world-class museums and collections found throughout Manhattan are not to be missed. The historic synagogues should be toured. But in New York City, Jewish life is just a walk down the street. The Jewish Museum (www.thejewish-museum.org) at 1109 Fifth Ave. (northeast corner of 92nd St.) is dedicated to presenting the remarkable scope and diversity of Jewish culture.

New York City (www.nycgo.com) is home to great shopping, fine dining, superb attractions and of course Broadway musicals.

WHERE TO DINE: Outside of Israel, New York City is probably the world capital for kosher restaurants. The Prime Grill, Le Marais, Mike's Bistro, Hummus Place and Ben's Kosher Delicatessen are all delightful spots.

On the evening we arrived we decided to dine at Gaby, a traditional French brasserie and bar named for a Parisian model who made a name and career for herself in New York in the 1920s. Just off the lobby of the Sofitel Hotel (45 West 44th Street), the restaurant seats 128 people. This is a classy restaurant, popular not only with hotel guests but those going to a Broadway show. Pre-theatre menus are available. The restaurant is open all day, beginning at breakfast and for lunch as well. Among its special menus is a 30-minute business lunch served in bento boxes for executives on the go. We enjoyed an absolutely outstanding dinner.

The one restaurant we had heard a lot about was TAO (www.taogroup.com), the pioneers of the Pan-Asian trend that swept New York City over a decade ago. We dined at TAO Uptown at 42 East 58th Street. The Pan Asian restaurant specializes in authentic Hong Kong Chinese, Japanese and Thai cuisines. There are three levels of dining, including the prized "Skybox" which offers views of what once was a movie theatre. Tao has 300 seats, a sushi bar, lounge and two bars at which to enjoy the food and the show. Readers should be sure to make reservations. There is a wonderful ambiance here, with trendy music and a charismatic serving staff. The menu here is truly designed for sharing. The outstanding item of the night which I strongly recommend was the satay of Chilean sea bass with wok roasted asparagus. I cannot remember tasting any kind of fish this good.

There are a number of Jewish partners at TAO, including Rich Wolf, Noah Tepperberg, Jason Strauss, Kim Kurlanchik, as well as managing partners Paul Goldstein and Andrew Goldberg.

Sterling.

Now these groups are trying to decide what do with the money. "Last year we took $10,000 from him", said Jay Sanderson, president of the Jewish Federation of Greater Los Angeles. "We are not going to take it anymore". Rabbi Marvin Heir of the Simon Wiesenthal Center says he has come to the same conclusion.

Yet other Jewish leaders are more circumspect. Michael Siegal, board chairman of the Jewish Federations of North America, says that rejecting donations from benefactors of ill-repute is not an easy decision. "What's the line of determination of what a bad
